Articles

The articles included in the web site are only a small portion of literally hundreds of articles that I have collected from various sources or written myself. If you do not see a topic that answers your particular question please go to the questions and comments section and let me know what you need.

If I do not have an article that addresses your query, I will, if it is within my area of expertise try to write a comprehensive answer.

Your question could turn into the next article published on this web site.

Seminars

These seminars were first given in the spring of 2005. I am available on reasonable notice to give a full presentation to a small group on any of these topics at your business or any other suitable location. The full seminars run about three hours in length but can be tailored to meet your needs.

If you would like a presentation, please let me know through the questions and comments section of this web site.

Thank you and I hope that you find the articles that are here informative and useful.
